

Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. This is a clear example of why media consolidation is dangerous.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line of the corporation and less of what we need for our democracy.

Sinclair's actions show why we need stronger media ownership rules, not weaker ones. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
